From the Pastor: This weekend, Sunday is the Feast Day of St. Pio of Pietrelcina, popularly known as Padre Pio. He is a contemporary of many of us having died in 1968. His story began to spread in this country when servicemen returned home from World War II. They brought stories of this Franciscan monk stationed at San Giovanni Rotondo in Italy. He who bore the stigmata, or the wounds of the crucified Christ, on his body and spent long hours in the confessional. He was known to have the ability to read souls; that is, to know whether anyone going to confession was making a full and complete confession. There are also accounts of him by-locating (being in two different places at the same time), levitating or healing someone by his touch. These are great miracles but what is most important is the example of humility that he gave. He was under investigation by the Vatican (on at least two occasions), he complied with the orders of by his superiors to cease contact with the faithful. When he was allowed to return to public ministry, the miracles resumed. Through his obedience, Padre Pio demonstrated that his works gave glory to God and not to himself.
