30th Sunday in Ordinary Time

The theme of today’s liturgy is prayer. “If Christians spend as much time praying as they do grumbling, they would soon have nothing to grumble about,” says an anonymous proverb. The parable of the Pharisee and the Tax collector teaches us that we have no business to despise, find fault or ridicule another human being based on his appearance, behavior, status, Profession, nationality, language or any other factor. And yet this is something that we constantly keep doing for it is a human tendency to think oneself superior to the other when in reality it may be the opposite.

Consider the following anecdote: A stooped old man and a lively young man happened to meet one day. The young man bragged to the old timer, “Why don’t you walk straight, like me? That’s no way to grow old. It’s all a matter of habit at least, that’s what I’m told.” The old man gave a look of pity and said, “My dear young friend, have you ever noticed a grain field and noticed which heads are bent and which ones stand up straight? If you take a good as the harvest time draws near, you will notice that the heads which are empty are standing tall and high. But the heads that make a good harvest are the ones that are filled and bending low.” The young man heard those words and passed by, slowly bowing his head. No doubt he pondered many a day on what the old man had said.

Norman Vincent Peale writes, “When you are in an upsetting situation, pray for everyone involved. Pray hard and be open to the power of God.” Prayer is a gift that blesses you and those for whom you pray and it is something that can be done at any time, in any place, whenever you have moment to give.

There is an old Hindu story about an elephant in India. He had gone to take a bath in the river. Now the elephant is a symbol of power and strength. He is self-reliant in pulling and pushing and fighting and making his way through the forest. He is fearless and independent. But this time he was in trouble: an alligator in the river got its jaws around the elephant’s back leg and was pulling him into the water. The elephant pulled for all he was worth. But to no avail. He just kept slipping in the mud. He was out of his element and helpless. He pulled and pulled to save his life and save his reputation as the strongest beast of the forest. But the stronger he pulled, the more ground he lost. Seeing that he was soon going to disappear under the water, in desperation he changed his tactics. He thought of God and prayed, as even elephants can in Hindu legends, “God, help me,” he pleaded, “My strength is unable to save me.” Then the Lord sent an eagle that saved the elephant from the alligator and his own pride. Divine help appeared when the strongest animal on earth had accepted its own limitations. That is a parable of grace, or God’s help. It comes when we acknowledge our limitations. Only when we give up our pride, we are ready to believe in grace. And at that moment real life begins.

Merlin R. Carothers (author of “Prison to Praise) says, “The very act of praise releases the power of God into a set of circumstances and enables God to change them if this is His design... I have come to believe that the prayer of praise is the highest form of communication with God, and one that always releases a great deal of power into our lives.”

Our Tri-Parish Knight's Council #6599 will conduct a membership drive after 10:30 Mass on October 23rd. Please consider joining the 71 men who are currently members! For more information, contact Jeff Pitman at jefferypitman@earthlink.net, or phone him at 715-235-2827.

This Week on FORMED: The psalm response this week says "The Lord hears the cry of the poor." However, the readings do not speak of just physical poverty. The Gospel shows a different kind of poverty, spiritual poverty. Sometimes we sin, but God, in His mercy, hears our cry also, and is quick to forgive. If it's been awhile since you've been to Confession, then Forgiven, the newest program on Formed.org is for you. Sneak peaks of the full program launch starting November 1st. If you're looking for something right away, check out the Answering Common Objections Series on the Audio tab. Dr. Scott Hahn talks about all the things that keep us away from this powerful Sacrament of Healing.
