What better gift than Mass prayers and to light the Tabernacle candle to have friends and family remembered for birthdays, anniversaries, and so many other occasions. Mass intentions and candles are not only for the deceased, but also as a Special Intention for the Living. Feel free to call us with a date. There is a list of available dates. You can leave your $15 donation for Mass stipends or $10 for the tabernacle offering in the rectory.

13th. Sunday in Ordinary Time July 2, 2017

First Reading: II Kings 4:8-11, 14-16a

The Shunamite woman gives hospitality to Elisha, not knowing he is a prophet. He is appreciative, and in turn promises to take away her misfortune of being barren.

Second Reading: Romans 6:3-4, 8-11

For Paul, the baptismal rite represents through symbols the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus. We are thus made free of the "old person," which was our sinful self. Of course it is a lifetime's work.

Gospel: Matthew 10:37-42

Jesus claims absolute allegiance from His disciples. "Little ones" likely designates the uneducated members of the community. Serving them even a cup of water has its reward if it is done in the name of the Lord.

Reflection by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

According to the theory, everyone on the team gets one. I refer to those awards that some coaches give out to his/her young team at the end of the season that are called "participation trophies." The idea is not to threaten a young person's self-esteem, even if all they did was suit up for the games and keep the bench warm. Everyone gets an award.

The idea is controversial. This writer happens to agree with psychologist Carol Dweck, who writes that "giving out such trophies is tantamount to giving kids the wrong kind of praise. The practice could also mean giving an award to a player who demonstrates a bad attitude on the rare occasions when he/she actually shows up." Dweck continues with a clincher argument: "Distributing awards 'en masse' can diminish the value of being honored. Kids should learn from an early age that success comes from sometimes failing but trying again."

What we know from Scripture and Tradition about the life, death and resurrection of Jesus clearly teaches us where He would stand on the matter of success, having nothing at all to do with tangible awards. He undoubtedly felt the pain of failure. But He never gave up. For example, through His three or so years of miracle-working, He never convinced the Pharisees of the truth of His teaching. The same holds for that group of townspeople in Capernaum who were so angry after He claimed to fulfill what Isaiah wrote about the Messiah that they tried to kill Him by throwing Him off a cliff. Right at the start of His ministry! Or that group who walked away from Him the day He announced the Eucharist as a matter of eating His flesh and drinking His blood to be truly alive.

Then we come to that awful night and day before and during His time on the cross. The little troop of Twelve split apart. One betrayed Him, and chose suicide over contrition. One denied Jesus not once but thrice. All but the youngest were notably absent on that Friday we call "Good." Could we really say Jesus was an obvious success in His earthly lifetime?

Ah, but that cross turned out to be a trophy! Three days later Jesus burst forth from His borrowed tomb, raised up by His almighty Father, thereby conferring the divine seal of approval on all that Jesus said and did. Ever since we decorate our churches, official priestly vestments, windows and so much more with that cross. Talk about awards and support of self-esteem!

Ponder the attitude of our Founding Fathers this Fourth of July weekend. They knew the risk they took by signing that Declaration of Independence. But if they had refused to work together just to preserve their self-esteem, or out of fear of reprisal from King George, we wouldn't be celebrating anything and would likely be singing "God save the King."

Now all we have to do, in the more important cause of our Christ, is participate as fully as we can in the life of Christ through His Church. Be evangelizers and examples of His values to others. Never "spiritual bench-warmers." St. Paul names our award for being on Christ's "team." Are you ready to hit the field?
